

CLAIMS

What is claimed is:

1. A system for maximizing collaborative productivity of knowledge workers, having at least one component to:

logically decentralize a collaborative information process of knowledge workers; logically centralize a collaborative information product of knowledge workers; and continuously reconcile the decentralized collaborative information process and the centralized collaborative information product.